Hana's Suitcase

5

Levine, Karen. Hana's Suitcase. Illinois: Albert Whitman & Co., 2003.

Concerned that Japanese children would never learn about the Holocaust, Fumiko Ishioka, the director of the Tokyo Holocaust Education Center in Japan, wanted tangible evidence. She appealed to the Auschwitz Museum in Poland to loan her a few artifacts, and she received a battered suitcase with the name "Hanna Brady" written on it. Hana's Suitcase alternates between Fumiko's and her students' quest to find clues to Hana's life, and Hana's own story. (Nonfiction)

Hidden: A Child's Story of the Holocaust

1

Dauvillier, Loic, Marc Lizano, and Alexis Siege. Hidden: A Child's Story of the Holocaust. First American edition New York: First Second, 2014.

In this gentle, poetic young graphic novel, Dounia, a grandmother, tells her granddaughter the story even her son has never heard: how, as a young Jewish girl in Paris, she was hidden away from the Nazis by a series of neighbors and friends who risked their lives to keep her alive when her parents had been taken to concentration camps. (Fiction)

I Never Saw Another Butterfly: Children's Drawings and Poems from Terezin Concentration Camp, 1942-1944

1

Volavkova, Hana, ed. I Never Saw Another Butterfly...: Children's Drawings and Poems from Terezin Concentration Camp, 1942-1944. 2nd Ed. NY: Schocken Books, 1993.

A total of 15,000 children under the age of fifteen passed through the Terezin Concentration Camp between the years 1942 – 1944; less than 100 survived. In these poems and pictures drawn by the young inmates of Terezin, we see the daily misery of these uprooted children, as well as their courage and optimism, their hopes and fears. (Nonfiction)

Irena Sendler and the Children of the Warsaw Ghetto

Rubin, Susan Goldman. Irena Sendler and the Children of the Warsaw Ghetto. Illus. by Bill Farnsworth. NY: Holiday House, 2011.

Irena Sendler, a Polish social worker, helped nearly four hundred Jewish children out of the Warsaw Ghetto and into hiding during the Holocaust. Using toolboxes, ambulances, and other ingenious measures, Sendler defied the Nazis and risked her own life by saving and hiding Jewish children. Her secret list of the children's real identities was kept safe, buried in two jars under a tree in war-torn Warsaw. (Nonfiction)
